Imagination Economy –for Sustainable Future–

Imagination Economy -for Sustainable Future-

THE TRENDS...

Greater environmental concerns

Rising importance of innovation and speed as critical success factors

Increasing demand for 'experiences'

Increasing economic nationalism

In manufacturing, product cycles could be shorter, with faster prototyping and testing of new ideas

XR could open up new sources of productivity, such as faster training and reskilling

Teams of 'holoployees' could emerge, able to collaborate across borders as easily as teams based in the same physical location

THE OPPORTUNITIES...

THE IMAGINATION ECONOMY

The boardroom itself is entirely virtual. Companies no longer need physical HQ

Real estate values and infrastructure are in flux

GDP shifts to sectors related to the Imagination Economy

XR has medical applications like helping treat PTSD in soldiers

The Imagination Economy will call for businesses in many sectors to reevaluate strategies, business models and operations

Industries relying on bricks & mortar need to look for new sources of competitive advantage

Uncertainty about how more widespread use of XR could impact intellectual property

Privacy concerns, as activities are easier to track in virtual than physical reality

THE CHALLENGES...

THE FUTURE...

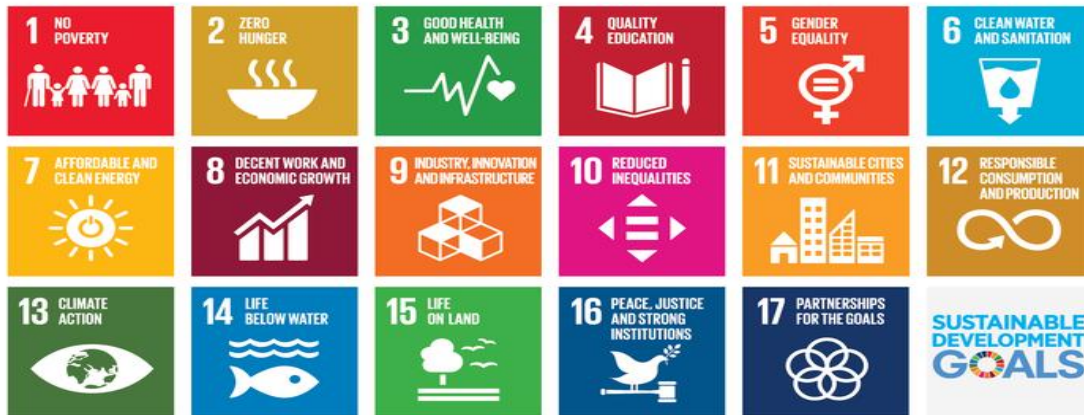

XR is the future
